EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Endorsed by UBC's leadership, the Strategic Equity and Anti-Racism (StEAR) Framework is a planning tool developed to guide UBC's approach to implementation of equity and anti-racism priorities and evaluation of progress.

The StEAR Roadmap for Change (the roadmap) is a substantive component of the StEAR Framework that sets out salient objectives and strategic actions to be implemented over the next three to five years.

Following a comprehensive analysis by the Equity & Inclusion Office, the roadmap objectives and strategic actions have been drawn out from university's existing equity, diversity and inclusion related plans and reports and aligned with the four StEAR framework domains of change: structural, curricular, compositional and interactional.

Context

Endorsed by UBC's leadership, the Strategic Equity and Anti-Racism (StEAR) Framework guides the university's approach to implementation equity and anti-racism priorities and evaluation of progress.

STEAR FRAMEWORK

In support of the inclusion theme in Shaping UBC's Next Century: UBC's Strategic Plan, the university has committed to addressing priorities articulated in the following plans and reports: the Inclusion Action Plan, the Employment Equity Plan, the Canada Research Chair (CRC) Equity, Diversity and Inclusion (EDI) Action Plan, the Dimensions Action Plan for EDI in Research, the President's Task Force on Anti-Racism and Inclusive Excellence Final Report, the Trans, Two-Spirit and Gender Diversity Task Force Report, and a forthcoming accessibility plan.

Introduced in 2023 by the Associate Vice-President, Equity and Inclusion (AVPEI), the StEAR Framework is a community-engaged, data-informed, action-oriented and accountability-driven planning tool developed to guide the implementation of these priorities and the cyclical evaluation of progress over the next three to five years.

The framework is built around four broad institutional domains of change – structural, curricular, compositional and interactional – and six principles of practice.

Using the framework, the Equity & Inclusion Office (EIO) reviewed UBC's existing EDI-related plans and reports and identified salient objectives and strategic actions that constitute the StEAR Roadmap for Change (the roadmap).

Implementation of the roadmap objectives and strategic actions will be done through governance and implementation bodies, including through meaningful and ongoing consultation, engagement and involvement of historically, persistently, and systemically marginalized (HSPM) groups.

Additionally, efforts will be made to build the competencies and capacities of leaders to act as change agents, to develop reporting and accountability mechanisms, and to establish quantitative and qualitative measures and methods to track progress.

Relationship to the Indigenous Strategic Plan

The StEAR framework is meant to complement, not compete with, the Indigenous Strategic Plan (ISP) which is the university's organizing framework to advance priorities related to Indigenous rights, decolonization, and reconciliation. The Indigenous Guiding Network is responsible for facilitating the implementation of the ISP, which “provides thoughtful guidance for action and a framework for reconciliation”.

In collaboration with Indigenous leads, mutually beneficial mechanisms for communication, consultation, collaboration, and coalition-building across the StEAR and ISP frameworks will be in place to ensure that equity and anti-racism priorities relevant to Indigenous students, faculty, and staff are appropriately addressed and/or referred to in the StEAR framework.

DEFINITION

Historically, persistently or systemically marginalized (HPSM)

The HPSM term is used to acknowledge that:

a) UBC and other institutions throughout Canada were created at a time when societal norms privileged and included some groups and disadvantaged and excluded others. In Canada, these disadvantaged groups have been identified as Indigenous people, women, disabled people, racialized people, and 2SLGBTQIA+ (Two-Spirit, Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer and/or Questioning, Intersex and Asexual; additionally, the plus reflects the countless ways in which people choose to self-identify) and Trans and Gender Non-binary (TGNB) people;

b) This history entrains a legacy of day-to-day barriers that have contributed to past, and perpetuate current, inequities - which compound over time; and

c) Our systems, in the form of policies, practices, culture, behaviours, and beliefs, continue to maintain these barriers in the ways that they continue to create the institution. It is often not an individual intention, but rather a systematic process that discriminates. It is an unconscious, unrecognized practice of doing things as they have always been done (and recreating the historical exclusions).

This language was intentionally and carefully chosen during the development of UBC's Inclusion Action Plan and is re-affirmed in the StEAR Framework and the Roadmap for Change. However, this does not preclude recognition of the historic, persistent and systemic marginalization of groups on the basis of numerous other characteristics, including, for example, those protected grounds established under the Canadian Human Rights Act, such as national or ethnic origin, socio-economic status, religion, age, marital status, etc.

Though it is useful to talk about HPSM people as a whole in some contexts, in others it is important to take a disaggregated and intersectional approach to understanding barriers to equity, and to consider what specific interventions might need to be tailored to the unique experiences of groups such as racialized women, Indigenous disabled people, queer and Black men.

STEAR DOMAINS OF CHANGE AND GOALS

1. STRUCTURAL DOMAIN

To develop institutional principles, paradigms, and processes that build organizational capacity to enable, drive, and sustain systems change through equitable and anti-racist leadership, governance, and accountability.

3. COMPOSITIONAL DOMAIN

To expand the representational diversity of the student body, professoriate, staff complement, and senior leadership and enhance lifecycle experiences of HPSM groups through equitable and anti-racist recruitment, development, and retention policies and practice.

2. CURRICULAR DOMAIN

To promote locally and globally relevant and responsive ways of learning, knowing, and translating knowledge through equitable and anti-racist teaching, research, and community-engagement programs and pedagogies.

4. INTERACTIONAL DOMAIN

To develop individual proficiencies that build campus community capacity to foster positive and effective intergroup relations and cultivate a climate that promotes human rights, dignity, equality, and belonging through equity and anti-racism training, education, and dialogue.

STEAR GUIDING PRINCIPLES

1. Recognition of the rights of Indigenous Peoples and respect for self-determination - implementing equity and anti-racism plans in a manner that complements and elevates, but does not subsume, Indigenous-led plans.

2. Race-consciousness in the pursuit of equity and inclusive excellence - centering anti-racism in an intersectional anti-oppressive framework to address deeply imbedded institutional racism and systemic inequities.

3. Meaningful and ethical community engagement - ensuring ongoing consultation with, transparent communication to, and meaningful recognition of contributions of historically, persistently, or systemically marginalized groups.

4. Networked leadership and coordinated de-centralization - cultivating a collaborative network of cross-campus equity champions working in communities of practice to advance unit-level and university priorities.

5. Accountability through collective responsibility and leadership ownership - demonstrating senior-level endorsement of and investment in strategic initiatives to mobilize and sustain campus-wide ownership and action towards systems change.

6. Data-informed decision-making and continuous improvement - undertaking assessment, evaluation, and research and leveraging qualitative and quantitative data to inform cyclical strategic planning processes.

Roadmap for change

The StEAR Roadmap for Change sets out 18 salient objectives and numerous strategic actions as part of the StEAR framework, to be implemented over the next three to five years.
